Communications Consultant for Our Voices III

1. Background

The International Centre: researching child sexual exploitation, violence and trafficking at the University of Bedfordshire (IC) (<http://www.beds.ac.uk/intcent>) is an award winning, applied research centre committed to increasing understanding of, and improving responses to, child sexual exploitation, violence and trafficking in local, national and international contexts.

The IC has recently received funding from Oak Foundation for a three year project (Sept 2020 - Aug 2023) entitled Our Voices III. This project builds on earlier work undertaken as part of the Our Voices programme of work at the IC (see <https://www.our-voices.org.uk/>).

This project has two main strands of work with the ultimate goal being to:

'reduce child sexual abuse and exploitation (CSA/E) by developing, evidencing and championing, ethical child-centered practice and research'.

The first strand of work involves undertaking a Delphi study that will explore whether and how 'participatory approaches' and principles support efforts to prevent CSA/E and respond to those affected. Through the study - which aims to develop agreement and consensus among international experts working in this field surrounding the value and challenges of adopting a 'participatory approach' - a model will be developed to outline the relationship and connections between different participatory principles with the aim of informing policy and practice. As part of this project, the team will also be designing a series of participatory consultations with young people with lived experience of CSA/E to further explore the implications of the findings on practice and help shape recommendations for those working in the field and funding CSA/E programmes.

The second strand of work involves developing an international network, 'The Our Voices University Network' (OVUN), comprised of researchers who are interested in researching CSA/E. This builds on a pilot project 'The University Network: Children Challenging Sexual Violence' and aims to build the capacity of researchers globally to improve evidence and influence practice and policy for children and young people affected by CSA/E. This will be achieved by creating a strong and active network of academics and (I)NGO researchers working through taskforces. These taskforces will develop resources to build capacity, share good practice and promote ethical participatory child-centred research. The network will create a supportive, reflective community for knowledge exchange. Engagement in the network will lead to partnership working between academia and practice within and across subject areas and country contexts. It will specifically engage with researchers in low income settings. Through this work, there will be an increase in ethical research exploring CSA/E to inform the development of improved programmes for children and young people.

2. The Consultancy

As part of the Our Voices III grant, the IC is looking to work with a skilled and experienced influencing and communications professional who has an awareness of international children's rights policy and practice. The consultant, through consultation with the team, will develop a communication and influencing strategy and action plan. This will ensure that key partners are engaged in the project, and that learning and recommendations generated from the Delphi study and OVUN translate into practical changes on the ground.

2.1. Scope of work

The consultant, in discussion with the team, will agree on the necessary activities to develop a communication and influencing strategy and action plan to help ensure that:

- All relevant stakeholders, including individuals and teams within influential organisations, are identified;
- 'Levers' for engagement and influencing are identified for all priority stakeholders;
- Stakeholders are effectively engaged and involved throughout the life of the project and;
- Outputs and learning from the project are communicated in appropriate and relevant formats for different stakeholder groups to maximise impact and reach.

The total amount of funds available is £7,500.
